Dear Parent / Carer

Following our letter in November (see attached), we confirm that the talk by David Shilston will be going ahead on Thursday 20 January between 3.15 pm and 4.30 pm in the Canteen. Students will need to wear masks.

David Shilston is an expert in Geoscience and an enthusiastic local geologist with specialist knowledge of the River Arun.

The River Arun is one of the case studies which our students study as part of their GCSE Geography and which traditionally they can find more challenging.

David Shilston's talk will enhance students' understanding of this aspect of their studies and will support the fieldwork that they did last summer at the River Arun which forms part of the summer exam.

We would strongly recommend that all students attend this presentation as it will give them important information which will help them with their studies.

There will be no charge and refreshments will be provided.

To give us an indication of the number of students attending please would you complete the Google form reply slip. If you have already replied, there is no need to do so again.
